

House of Illustration Whole School INSET

AIMS - We aim to empower all teachers with the skills, techniques and confidence to weave illustration into their teaching across the curriculum.

As an art form and a communication tool, we see how much illustration benefits pupils' creative development, art and design skills, enjoyment for learning, confidence and even attainment through our unique approach.

Our team of exceptional professional illustrators have been delivering INSET and CPD courses for primary schools since 2010. Through working with many teachers and undertaking rigorous evaluation, we have developed an approach which is recommended by 100% of teachers. Our INSET supports schools undertaking Arts Mark accreditation and those devising a creative curriculum.

WHAT WE OFFER

When working with a school we like to tailor the session to the school's requirements and always enjoy responding to new suggestions. An INSET session is made up of a presentation about the power of illustration in education and a series of shorter and longer practical activities. These are all designed to be accessible and "non-threatening" to all abilities as we know many teachers lack confidence in teaching (and creating) art.

FOCUS OPTIONS

We can adapt to any focus, theme, whole-school issue or topic you like. Some popular choices include:

- Inspiration for writing
- Illustrating across the curriculum
- Drawing and painting
- Using sketchbooks effectively

ACTIVITIES

Practical activities we offer include:

- Collage characters
- Interventions in found images
- Observational drawing
- Ink & watercolour technique
- Sequential illustration – fact or fiction
- Story islands and maps
- Emotions and facial expressions
- Dioramas

Whether we deliver a two-hour twilight or a whole day session, we always include a variety of techniques and conclude with a plenary to share ways to put the learning into practice.

We want every teacher to leave feeling inspired and equipped to deliver fantastic illustration-based learning in the classroom straight away.
